Asheville – The Mountain City

Asheville rates high in cultural, recreational and educational opportunities. Recently named an All-America City, Asheville also is described as one of the country's most livable cities. "Asheville has it all," says Outside magazine.

The nearby Great Smoky Mountains National Park, Mount Mitchell State Park, Blue Ridge Parkway, and Pisgah and Nantahala national forests provide more than a million acres of public land for hiking, backpacking, rock climbing, canoeing, kayaking, mountain biking and more. The city's revitalized downtown blends modern life and traditional Appalachian culture. You'll find coffee houses and ethnic restaurants, shopping malls and crafts shops, art galleries and museums, specialty shops and a varied nightlife. A year-round entertainment lineup appeals to many tastes, offering classical and popular music concerts, theatre productions, and music and dance festivals.

Located one mile north of downtown Asheville, the scenic UNC Asheville campus is convenient to the city yet minutes from some of the country's most spectacular scenery. UNCA's hometown has all the advantages of a growing city of 75,000 in a beautiful mountain environment.
